INTRODUCTION

These Autumn series of parenting talks have been organised by Kildare Library Service with support from the Kildare Child and Young People Services Committee and The Kildare and West Wicklow Parenting Forum. The 'Let's talk about Parenting' Programme has run in Kildare Libraries since 2015 and is funded by Kildare County Council.

These events hope to support both parents and professionals working with children and families in County Kildare. Attendance at all events is free of charge and open to library members but booking is required. If you are not already a member and live, work or study in County Kildare it's free and easy to join at your local library or online via https://kildarecoco.ie/library. Talks are a mixture of in-house and online. Bookings will be taken via the supplied web links, or by scanning the QR code in the physical brochure (try using your camera, or else a dedicated QR scanning app). Alternatively contact your local library for help with booking. Certificates of attendance are available for Continuing Professional Development purposes.

For more information on the programme, contact colibrary@kildarecoco.ie and we will be happy to assist. For venue specific details, help with booking etc, you can contact the relevant library - contact details below.
We hope you enjoy the programme!

SPOTLIGHT TALK

Parenting in a Changing World

Presented by Dr Antaine Stíobhairt

Rarely throughout history has the world changed in so many ways in such a short space of time. Over the past 30 years, we have experienced unimaginable advances in technology, giving rise to the likes of smartphones, social media and AI. This has occurred alongside huge social and political changes, such a shift towards individualism, globalisation and multi-culturalism. In recent years, Ireland – like many other countries – seems increasingly divided on its values, morals and vision for the future.

The aims of this presentation are: 1) to help parents better understand the complex world young people are navigating nowadays; and 2) to highlight the critical role of parents in guiding the psychological development of their children. Key areas discussed will include developing their understanding of society (past, present and future), learning to think flexibly and critically, developing their own beliefs and morals, building a fulfilling life and avoiding pitfalls that commonly contribute to poor mental health among young people nowadays.

Online: Tuesday 10th November 7pm

EARLY YEARS

Baby Sign and Rhyme (4-week course)

Presented by Claire Glynn

Clever Little Handies is an award-winning baby sign class for parents with babies from newborns, up to wobblers / babies of 1 years of age.

We already know babies can communicate with their hands before they can talk; they can wave; they can clap; they can point. They have the dexterity in their hands to formulate signs long before they have the muscle dexterity in their mouths to form words. By providing tools to communicate from an early age they will have a vocabulary to use, even if they're not formulating words yet. Signs that pertain to the day to day with a baby are taught through nursery rhymes, songs and poems. These are fun informal sessions and an opportunity to connect more with your baby, as well as meeting other parents.

Disclaimer: This event is an introductory baby-signing session and is not a formal Irish Sign Language (ISL) course. It is not facilitated by a qualified ISL tutor and is not intended to replace formal ISL tuition. For information about formal ISL classes and Deaf-community resources, please contact the Irish Deaf Society. (www.irishdeafsociety.ie)

Beyond Counting: Maths through Play!
(for parents of 3 – 6 years)

Presented by Rhona Stallard

For national Maths Week we have these fun informal workshops, on building strong mathematical thinking through playful everyday experiences. These practical workshops will help parents understand how early mathematical concepts develop naturally through play, conversation, movement, stories and daily routines. Families will leave with simple strategies to nurture children's confidence with maths long before formal schooling begins.

NB: The talk is tailored for adults but if you have a Smallie in tow that is fine also!

GENERAL

"Talking to the Wall" Feeling Heard and Effectively Communicating: 2 – 8 years

Presented by Deirdre Holland Hannon

Tired of shouting to be heard? Feel like your words are bouncing off the walls? This empowering 1.5-hour workshop is for any parent who's exhausted by the daily struggle to get their child to listen or cooperate. Learn how to break the shouty cycle, use less energy and get real results with practical, no-fluff strategies that work. You'll discover why your child might not be listening, what you can change today and how to nurture cooperation without yelling or threats. Expect real talk, relatable solutions and a fresh approach to feeling heard—without the drama.

Building Parenting Capacity and Confidence (4-12 years)

Presented by Connected Childhood

Fostering understanding to build confidence and reassure parents. Developing an awareness of your own needs and capacity helps parents respond to their child rather than react.

When parents understand what may be happening beneath their child's behaviour, they can respond with greater curiosity, compassion and confidence. Building awareness of our own emotions, triggers and nervous system helps us recognise what we need to stay grounded when parenting feels challenging. Small moments of connection and repair can make a meaningful difference—parents do not need to get it right all the time. Greater understanding brings greater confidence, helping parents trust themselves and strengthen their connection with their child.

When Learning Doesn't look like learning: Understanding Playful Learning in Today's Primary Classrooms

Presented by Gillian Corbally

What does learning look like in today's primary school and why might it look different from the school many of us remember?

As Ireland moves through the redeveloped Primary Curriculum, classrooms are changing, with greater emphasis on active, meaningful and engaging learning rather than traditional book work and worksheets. In this one-hour session, Gillian Corbally explores what these changes mean for children and families, including:

- What is changing in the redeveloped Primary Curriculum and why.
- What playful learning looks like across all class levels.
- How play, exploration, creativity, collaboration and talk support meaningful learning and wellbeing.
- Why learning doesn't always need to look like a completed worksheet or busy copybook.
- What parents might see in their child's classroom and the learning happening behind it.
- Discover why learning can be playful, purposeful and rigorous at every age.

Sometimes the classroom that looks like it is "just playing" is where some of the most important learning is happening.

Connective Discipline
- A New Lens to View Discipline Through

Presented by Helena Walsh

"If you want to discipline your kids, make them your disciples. A disciple is someone who in not afraid of you. A disciple is someone who loves you and wants to belong to you and follow you. Discipline is the very opposite of punishment." - Dr. Gabor Maté

Connective Discipline challenges many of the traditional views on discipline and fear-based compliance.

Key Aspects

- Consider how we were Disciplined: Challenging the traditional view of 'Discipline'
- Behaviour: We explore the role of development and how this, together with emotional intelligence, influence behaviour. Our own intuition gives much insight into our child's behaviour also.
- Setting Boundaries: Connective Discipline emphasises the importance of setting firm but kind boundaries and understanding when and how to do so.
- Nurturing Secure Attachment: It offers practical, simple ways that we can connect with our children to nurture a secure attachment through the cycle of rupture and repair, as well as the role of 'play' in nurturing the secure attachment.

CONNECTED CHILDHOOD

Connected Childhood is a place where parents and teachers can be supported in how they interact and connect with children. Founded by Anna McGrath and Susanne Martin, accredited play therapists and experienced primary school teachers, their vision is to bring understanding and evidence-based approaches to how we support children's development and wellbeing. "This support is for every adult and child relationship. We work with parents, teachers, special needs assistants or those working in early childhood education. Every day we see how empowering it is when an adult is given the right information for their situation and then the evidence-based approaches meet the needs of a child. This brings about positive, meaningful change, both for the child but also for the adult, in how they feel about themselves and their role".
