DARTMOUTH GRADUATES 208.

Alexander Graham Bell Among Those Receiving Honorary Degrees.

HANOVER, N. H., June 25.—Dartmouth College celebrated its one hundred and forty-fourth commencement day by graduating a class of 208 men with bachelor degrees.

Among the honorary degrees conferred were these: Doctor of Laws—Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, and Jesse Johnson, '63, of Brooklyn, author and former Justice of the New York Supreme Court; Master of Arts—Samuel D. Felker, '82, Governor of New Hampshire.

The New York Times
Published: June 26, 1913
Copyright © The New York Times