A BIG LUMBER SCHOONER.

NEW-HAVEN, Feb. 15.—The new mammoth five-masted schooner Governor Ames of Boston, the only vessel of similar rig and size afloat on salt water, which was dismasted on her initial trip some weeks ago, has been remasted and is now nearly ready to sail. Her masts have been considerably shortened, enabling her to work better "in stays," and improving her appearance. She is now to leave port for Maine, where she will load with lumber for Buenos Ayres. She can carry nearly 2,000,000 feet of lumber, and will contract to load at $15 50 per 1,000 feet. It is expected that she will make the run to South America in 60 days, as she is a good sailer. Capt. Cornelius Davis of Somerset will go out in her as commander and managing owner.
